

KINDRED STORIES OF DISABILITY:

THE RIGHT TO COMMUNICATE

We are currently seeking interviews with individuals with communication disabilities and/or their families.

Interviews will focus on furthering the work of raising expectations and improving awareness of the need for effective AAC for people with communication disabilities.

What is Kindred Stories?

- A collaborative project between the Vanderbilt Kennedy Center (VKC) and The Arc Tennessee
- Interviews conducted by students from Vanderbilt University
- Combined to create a collection of stories that highlight the challenges individuals with disabilities and their families face
- Our goal: to share the stories we collect with legislators and policymakers and to contribute to improved service delivery across ALL areas of our state

Find out more: <http://vkc.mc.vanderbilt.edu/vkc/resources/kindred/>

Interview

Commitment:

- a conversation with a Vanderbilt student in the fall of 2018
- questions will be given before the interview starts
- typically lasts around one hour

INTERESTED?

Please email:

courtney.taylor
@vumc.org

with "Kindred Stories"
as the subject line
or call
(615) 322-5658